Your personal statement should include:

- ☐ How RBC has prepared you for the academic rigors of William & Mary.
 - This could include leadership roles outside of class (clubs, organizations, service, jobs, etc.).
 - You may also want to include the way some of your more rigorous courses or life situations have challenged you and how you overcame those challenges.
- ☐ Your future plans (graduation date, aspirational degree and/or professional goals)
 - Aspirational goals could be large, such as to become President of the United States, or more specific to post-baccalaureate work.
- ☐ Why do you want to attend W&M and how will they help you attain your goals?
- ☐ What do you offer W&M and what will you bring to their active and scholarly campus?
- ☐ Anything else about you that you feel is important for the Provost to know

Your personal statement is going to the Provost; W&M will not see this document.

How to secure letters of recommendation:

- ☐ It is highly recommended that these letters come from professors with whom you have established supportive, professional relationships.
- ☐ You should send your personal statement to your professor to help them better understand your goals and aspirations so they can write a more personalized letter for you.
- ☐ Give your professors as much advanced notice as possible to compose a letter on your behalf. Two weeks is the minimum notice you should give.
- ☐ It may be helpful to make sure you get at least one letter from a professor that teaches your intended major, however this is not a requirement.
- ☐ Professors should email letters of recommendation to provost@rbc.edu prior to your meeting with the Provost.
